

A Real Food Shortage

7/9/11

submitted by Frytown

When the Levee Breaks

With a myriad of reports from the FAO (Food and Agriculture Organization of the UN) and even the USDA predicting food price increases and shortages this fall, the destruction of 200 square miles of some of the most fertile farmland in the world should do more than raise an eyebrow. As this story will demonstrate, the actual destruction of this farmland is much more than the loss of one growing season.....

<http://www.newswithviews.com/Hannes/doreen114.htm>

by Doreen Hannes